

CLAIMS

I claim:

1. A multiple-sided video display system comprising, a mounting enclosure, containing two or more individual video display screens oriented at angles so that one and only one individual video display screen thereon can be seen by an individual positioned in front of the individual video display screen, and so that the face and upper body of all individuals positioned in front of the individual display screens can be see each other individual positioned in front of the individual display screens.
2. The process of displaying video broadcast content, internet content, or pre-recorded content utilizing a multiple-sided video display system.
3. The process of displaying computer games utilizing a multiple-sided video display system.
4. A multiple-sided video display system according to claim 1, wherein the video display system is electronically or optically connected via wireless or wired connections to a computer game controller.
5. A multiple-sided video display system according to claim 1, wherein the video display system is electronically or optically connected via wireless or wired connections to a video display computer, broadcast receiver, or pre-recorded content player.

6. A multiple-sided video display system according to claim 1, wherein number of video display devices is three.
7. A multiple-sided video display system according to claim 1, wherein number of video display devices is four.
8. A multiple-sided video display system according to claim 1, wherein number of video display devices is greater than four.